A story of the Soil is a collection of over forty classic Punjabi short stories. Combining a rich oral tradition of kissas with tropes from Western literature, Punjabi short-story writers have developed their own unique way of portraying love, longing, ecstasy and malice. Spanning a century, these stories talk of life in the village and the town. There are haunting tales about Partition like 'A Matter of Faith' by Gulzar Singh Sandhu where a horrible tragedy is viewed through the eyes of a child. Along with sensitive accounts of life from across the border in Pakistan are tales by the Dalits who until recently had been rendered voiceless. Amrita Pritam's 'The Vault', a metaphor for a barren womb, explores the identity of a Punjabi woman while stories like Surjit Birdi's 'Flies' reveals the concerns faced by the Punjabi diaspora. Translated and edited by Nirupama Dutt, these carefully selected stories reflect every aspect of life in the land of five rivers.

Directory of Indian Women Today, 1976 CreateSpace

This novel depicts the ravage which had been caused in the name of freedom to the millions of innocent men, women and the young girls during the partition of India. This had resulted in the death of millions of the people due to the communal riots. The countless women and girls had been kidnapped and their precious lives had been either ruined or ended. For the sake of honor they were not accepted even by their close relatives instead most of them were rejected by their families. Millions of the people were migrated from one place to another and innumerable well settled families had been destroyed, ruined and these were made the penniless families who had nothing to eat, drink and wear. Although the characters of that novel are imaginary yet that novel deals with the hard realities of the actual lives of those unfortunate innocent and faultless people who had become the victims of atrocities, ravage, injustice and devastation.

Desire v/s Destiny...Short stories and poems inspired by real life Routledge

This book is the third in the trilogy of books looking at the comparatively less-known destinations of Sikh migration to non-English speaking countries. The first one was Sikhs in Latin America, followed by Sikhs in Asia Pacific. Earlier Sikh migration was focused on the British Commonwealth and the USA. Once restrictions were placed on entering the UK, the Sikhs were forced to explore the possibility of migrating to other countries including Continental Europe. The pace of migration picked up in 1970s. Later there were more asylum seekers in the 1980s and 1990s adding to the migration numbers. Some could enter Europe through legal channels, while others found alternative routes as undocumented migrants. Sikhs found employment mostly as unskilled labour but now they have been able to create niche professions such as dairying in Italy and restaurants/bars in Finland. There is now a large second generation who is fully qualified to enter other professions. The author describes how Sikhs have kept up their traditions through 'Nagar Kirtans', Turban, Youth Summer camps, and 'sewa'. There are almost 140 gurdwaras in Europe with a meagre population of less than a quarter million. The status and position of Indian women have undergone many changes since the high status they enjoyed in the Vedic era yielded to forced suicide during the dark ages, female infanticide, purdah, child marriages and the denial of property and political rights. This book, first published in 1985, provides a comprehensive annotated bibliography to those years, and the years that followed of the relentless liberation struggle by women on the socio-political and legal fronts.

Glimpses of Modern Punjabi Literature Primedia E-launch LLC This is the novel which describes the troubles and miseries faced by Asian migrants who suffer a lot and struggle too much in order to migrate and settle down in the western countries. Most of them are ignorant about the culture and family life in the western countries. They take the western countries as Heaven and think and misunderstand that the life in the western countries is very easy, comfortable and full of joys and happiness but after reaching there they face and realize the hard realities of practical life. Baldhir is such a boy who dreams a lot about the Europe and thinks that he would lead a luxurious, comfortable and joyful life in the western countries if he gets an opportunity to settle down in any of the western country, he gives up his studies of M.B.B.S. degree and ruins his career in the hope to migrate to the western country but all of his dreams are dashed to the ground when he gets married to a girl born and brought up in the Europe. He experiences bitter realities of life in the Europe and becomes extremely frustrated and finally commits suicide.

Language Handbook on Mother Tongues in Census Penguin UK

Somehow the resonance for me during the entertaining of this title as an abiding albeit background theme for the poems, was the perfect crime of our existence: perfect because created by a perfect Creator. A crime because we get up to such malfeasance all the time, at the lower end of it, and a crime at the higher end in the sense that the Sufis often mention, that any existence of theirs before Allah ta'ala, any flake or residue of their self-ness, is a crime, a flaw, an obstruction before the Light of God. Only when you have known a saint (wali) of whatever spiritual practice do you the sense of a personality honed to its finest before the divine consciousness, whose actions and words and thoughts are soaked in divinity to such a degree that the person is truly human in its essence and effaced before God in His ever-present and infinitely Merciful activity.
